PPI Parent Company Signs Letter Of Intent To Acquire Compositx Co.

SUNRISE, FL, April 5, 2007 — PPI's parent company, Ceramic Protection Corporation, announced today that it has recently signed a non-binding Letter of Intent to acquire Compositx Co. of Newark, Ohio. The transaction is subject to, among other things, the negotiation and signing of a Definitive Agreement. Other terms were not disclosed.

Established in 1987, Compositx, along with its sister companies, Ohio Armor and Force One, LLC, has produced a variety of products in markets ranging from military and commercial armor, vehicle and aircraft armor protection to personnel body armor. As a specialty OEM (Original Equipment Manufacturer) producer of armor products, machined metallic parts and specialty products, Compositx capabilities range from developing prototype parts and processes to the production of finished products. Compositx products include custom fabricated composite parts, armor products, bullet-resistant vests, protective plates, Aramid-Shield(TM) armor materials, military composites, lightweight military vehicle components, composite fuel tanks and coated yarns.

"This accretive transaction would, if completed, continue our strategy of core market acquisitions, and would incrementally add to earnings per share in 2007," said Mr. Steve Giordanella, Chief Executive Officer. "We admire Compositx, its people and its unique capabilities and we look forward to finalizing the Definitive Purchase Agreement and bringing Compositx to the CPC family. We also look forward to leveraging each companies' talents, capabilities and resources. We believe the Compositx product lines would complement our current product portfolio, contribute significantly to our product mix for our customers, and we would expect Compositx to integrate directly into our distribution channels."
